

Text4baby Tuesday

A weekly update from the National Healthy Mothers, Healthy Babies Coalition

April 17, 2012

Next week is National Infant Immunization Week (NIIW). This annual observance highlights the importance of protecting infants from vaccine-preventable diseases and celebrates the achievements of immunization programs.

Sponsored by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), NIIW serves as a call to action for parents, caregivers, and health care providers to ensure that infants are fully immunized against 14 vaccine-preventable diseases. Text4baby has sent over 1 million messages about immunization since launch! Check out more information about NIIW activities and resources for planning and promoting an event in your community.

Partner Spotlight

Engaging elected officials in text4baby promotion is a great way to raise public awareness about the service and help connect more pregnant women and new moms to critical health and safety information. The Early Head Start program at Family Services, Inc., a text4baby partner from Gaithersburg, Maryland, recently headed to the State Capitol for meetings with Maryland State legislators to discuss various programs and initiatives. Early Head Start staff spent time speaking about Family Services' partnership with text4baby and encouraging legislators to learn more about how they can promote the service to their constituents. In addition to engaging these State legislators, Early Head Start also reached out to the Montgomery County Board of Education and the Montgomery County Council and shared information about text4baby in an effort to engage a variety of key stakeholders around the State as advocates for the service. Thank you Family Services, Inc., for including text4baby in your outreach to officials at the County and State level!

Radio PSAs

Gracias to the National Council of La Raza (NCLR) for partnering with text4baby to release a Spanish-language radio Public Service Announcement (PSA). In this week's NCLR Affiliate Digest, they provided information to their affiliate network of nearly 300 community-based organizations on how to promote the PSA. You can get this radio ad played in your community too. This page will tell you how. Let us know how you are encouraging your networks to play the text4baby radio PSAs!

Text4baby in the Media

The American Congress of Obstetricians and Gynecologists (ACOG) President, Dr. James N. Martin, wrote about text4baby in the April edition of ACOG news. His article encourages ACOG members to talk to their patients about text4baby, and highlights recent evaluation results out of a study at UCAL/CAL State, including improved patient adherence to appointments and immunizations, increased patient knowledge about maternal health and medical warning signs, and facilitated interaction with health providers. Additionally, the study revealed that 72% of respondents reported that they talked with their doctor about a topic that they read on a text4baby message.

Webinar on Food Safety for Pregnant Women April 19

Join the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) and text4baby for our webinar: Food Safety for Pregnant Women on April 19, 2012 from 3:00 – 4:00 pm Eastern Time. Our main speaker, Dr. Mickey Parrish, is a Senior Advisor for Microbiology in the Office of Food Safety at FDA's Center for Food Safety and Applied Nutrition. Dr. Parrish is an internationally recognized expert in food microbiology and will provide an overview of foodborne illnesses and explain why pregnant women are at higher risk of infection. Maribel Alonso, USDA's Technical Information Specialist for the Meat and Poultry Hotline and Brenda Halbrook, USDA's Director of the Food Safety Unit, will introduce a new consumer booklet developed in partnership by USDA and FDA which details food safety information for pregnant women and easy steps they can take to reduce their risk of infection. Participants will also learn about text4baby, a free text messaging service that provides pregnant women with critical health information on issues including food safety from Sarah Ingersoll, the program's Campaign Director. Please register here.
