We hope you are enjoying the new and improved www.text4baby.org website. Now that the site is live, we would like to populate it with photos of your text4baby outreach efforts! We know you’re doing fantastic things, especially now that the State Enrollment Contest is underway, and we think you should show them off! We invite you to send any and all text4baby-related photos to info@text4baby.org and we will upload them to the website. In order for us to post your photos, please fill out the photo release form. We also encourage you to upload your photos to the text4baby Facebook page as well. We look forward to seeing your work in action!

Text4baby in the News

Protect Our Children: Healthy & Fit

On Saturday, WABC-TV in New York City featured text4baby in a special report entitled “Protect Our Children: Healthy & Fit.” Hosted by Eyewitness News Anchor Diana Williams, the program profiled text4baby as a way to “help get pregnant and new mothers plus their infants off to a healthy start.” To watch the video, click here.

Baby facts: Free text messaging sends new and expectant moms health tips
Last Friday, text4baby was featured in an article on Medill Reports by the Medill School of Journalism at Northwestern University. The article provided background on the program and sample text messages, as well as quotes from text4baby user Ashley Walton of Chicago. Walton commented, “I got a few texts about breastfeeding and learned how much it can help my baby,...I talked about it with my doctor and ended up breastfeeding and pumping for almost a year after she was born.” The piece also includes quotes from text4baby Director of Education, Arlene Remick and coverage of the new State Enrollment Contest. Hollywood, Health & Society: Real to Reel
Text4baby was featured in the Winter 2011 edition of Real to Reel, the newsletter of the Hollywood, Health & Society program of the Norman Lear Center that is sent to over 800 Hollywood television and film writers. Text4baby posters and materials were also distributed to television shows for use as set dressings. The Lear Center is a nonpartisan research and public policy center that studies the social, political, economic and cultural impact of entertainment on the world. Their Hollywood, Health & Society program is a resource for entertainment writers working on medical and health storylines. To read the newsletter, click here.

Silver Anvil Awards: Text4baby: Going Mobile With Pregnancy Education
Last week, the Public Relations Society of America (PRSA) featured text4baby in a podcast as part of a series on finalists for their 2011 Silver Anvil Awards. The award recognizes public relations programs that incorporate sound research, planning, execution, and evaluation. The PRSA spoke to Stacie Paxton, Vice President at Hill & Knowlton to discuss the creation and strategy of text4baby. To listen to the podcast, click here.

Weekly Mobile Health Fast Fact
According to the Pew Internet & American Life Project, there is no gender difference in the number of text messages men and women send daily - men and women send text message in equal amounts. To learn more about who is using cell phones and what they’re using them for, click here.
